COMMENT OF

Malenkov Replies

he became Premier of the Soviet Union Mr Malenkov has replied to a series of questions correspondent. But the answers he gave this time ar more important than those he gave in 1954. Those were more than platitudes. This is a statement of policy on more definite matters and calls for careful study. Not that it contains anything new. either by way of comment or of proposal. It is a reaffirmation of things that have been said over and over again during the past year by Mr Molotov, but that in itself is important and as the year advances Soviet policy remains precisely where it was. Nor is the tone perceptibly different from that of the Soviet Foreign Minister's recent notes and utterances. Mr Malenkov repents accusations that Mr Molotov made at the Berlin conference and which he has made many tlmes since. America charged with "preparation for another war", this by the "resurrection of a revengeseeking West German army, an armaments drive and the establishment of a network of bases around the Soviet Union and other peace loving states."

MRANSLATED from current

Communist vocabulary they are: First, no rearmament of West Germany, so that, if Germany were rounited the only military force in the whole country would be the Russian organised police. Second, the withdrawal of alt British and U.S. troops and the dismantling of the West European defence Fourth, abandonof the idea of Western European Here then is the Russian programme for "co-existence" in Western Europe is to be divided virtually defenceless and separated from Brithe United States. However, when the ratification of the London and Paris agreements has been completed and the new Western European Union is in existence Soviet policy will no longer have any relation to reality and the Russian leaders are always realists. It does not mean that one can anticipate any immediate change, any immediate readiness in Moscow to come to a reasonable settlement of the German or Austrian problems. But the situation will have changed Soviet policy will no longer be dominated by this hope of preventing Western European integration so there will have to be a reappraisal. It should be noted, too, that while Mr Malenkov was apecific and definite about Europe he was carefully vague about the Far East. He did not go beyond a very noncommittal statement that "better relations between the countries concerned for settlement of a number of Far Eastern questions should be welcomed." One gains the impression that the Soviet Government feels that it must walk warlly with regard to Far Eastern affairs; that can say nothing that might seem in any way to commit

SIJRPRISE New Moscow Attack On Paris Agreements

AND GAS WARFARE PROTOCOL

Moscow, Jan. 13.

The Soviet Government charged tonight that the Paris Agreements on German rearmament violate the 1925 Geneva Pact which prohibits germ warfare and the use of poison gas.

The Soviet Government warned against ratification of the Paris accords in identical notes delivered to the Ambassadors of the Brussels Pact states-Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg. Strict Police Measures Taken In All Major Cities

Paris, Jan. 13.

The French Resident-General in Morocco, M. Francis Lacoste, arrived today and began a series of meetings with Government officials on the explosive situation in the North African protectorate of Morocco.

Informed sources said M. Lacoste brought concrete suggestions to ease the tense situation and end terrorist attacks, which have taken 35 lives in Casablanca alone since December 20.

Andre Charlot was producing There is no use having two something new at the Vaude-Wellingtons for one Water- ville Theatre in London.

But when I got home my mind went philandering into the distant past when, by sheer merit or something, I was promoted from office at the Nordheimer Plano Company in Toronto to answering the telephone switchboard in the sheet department and accepting payment of tuning and hirepurchase accounts.

It was fun to see customers come into our King Street store and go up to a salesman behind the counter and say: "Do you know a song about moon in June that goes da-da-da-doodoo-doo-moon?" But it was more fun when an Englishwoman, who played the organ in church on Sundays, would enter the store with her two daughters-Muriel and Reatrice.

High Spirits

MURIEL was the gifted one. In IVI fact she played the plane quite well, and in those dark, uncivilised days, the ability to play the plane was much esteemed. The years of enlightenment when girls would only have to learn to twiddle a knob were still far ahead.

We were glad for Mrs Lillie's sake that she had one gifted daughter, because poor Beatrice could not do a darn thing. Her voice would hardly have got by in a church choir on a wet Sunday, and when she joined a touring stock company in Northern Ontario she proved that in addition to being unable to sing or play the piano she could also neither dance nor act.

from the Nordhelmer's shop I admired her for her high spirits. Sometimes she would address the salesman behind the counter with the affected drawl of a duchess opening a Conservative garden fete. Next time she would be so Middle West that her English mother would blush with embarrassment.

In fact she once horrifled us all by actually doing the dance of the dying swan and tripping up every time she did a twirl.

Only two people believed in her-Beatrice and her mother. But I doubt if either of them knew what they believed They scht her to a teacher who coached her in singing and acting but it was no use. At any rate there was still the other daughter who played the plane with increasing promise.

I weren't afraid of boring my renders I would probably print some such hand as today's about once every week. It might not as a horrible example and a warning to all adventurous bridge bidders to mend their ways.

There is no excuse for vulnerable overeall on the South hand. The hand may take three or four tricks, but that is hardly enough to justify a bid that promises to take seven tricks.

this case South was promptly punished for his foolish bld. West doubled crisply, and all passed with varying emotions. North knew that he was in trouble, East was glad to have a chance to defend with his balanced hand, and South knew that he had heard the crack of doom.

West opened the eight of diamonds, and East won with the lack of diamonds and promptly returned his low trump. South played low, and West won with the nine of hearts.

West led another damond, and East won with the queen East now returned the jack of hearts, and South put up the nce. For lack of anything better to do. South led the ten of clubs and let it ride for a finesie,

The real way easy for the defenders and very and for South, East took his two remaining top diamonds, after which the defenders took their two top clubs and got out with a spade to South, ace. South had to lead trumps to West, giving up two more tricks to the king and ten.

Altogether, the defenders took three teamps, four diamonds, and three clubs, setting i the contract four tricks for a penalty of 1,100 points. This i was almost twice the value of the game that East and West might have bid. They were perfectly willing to accept the

Camera Might Curb Italian M.P's. Tempers

Rome, Jan. 13.

The prying, impersonal eye of a cine-camera is being suggested in Italy as a possible curb on the violent tempers of many Members of Parlia-

The suggestion comes from Signor Achille Marazza, a 60-year-old Christian Democrat, member of the Chamber of Deputies (Lower House of Parliament) who is campaigning against the all-too-frequent fist-fights in both the Chamber and Senate.

Signor Marazza told reporters recently that he thought the installation of one or more cine-cameras in the two Houses, might discourage members from starting a fight.

INCREASED PENALTIES Signor Matagan is also studying the desirability of increasing the penalties on Deputies and Senators who provoke or start fights in Parliament.

This is the latest result of a He thinks that the present maximum penalty of exclusion newly-founded company which from 16 sittings, a punishment undercut the big firms which inflicted very rarely indeed, too had maintained a common price

When Parliament reconvened after the general elections in June 1953 it was noticed that there were more ushers, and that they were all burly These ushers have prevented many outbursts of fury. But sometimes they have been swamped and flung aside by hot-headed members, Last October, the ushers hastily formed a human barrier across the well of the Chamber of Deputies when Communist members left their seats and formed up for an attack on the Christian Democrat benches in the centre of the hall. Against a background of shouts, menecing growls and feminine screams, the Communists broke through the usher's barrier and started a fight which will long be remembered by the Deputies of all parties. The buttle began when a Christian Democrat member, Gluseppe Togni, speaking during a Foreign Affairs debate, accused a number of Communists of having been Fascist spies during the Mussolini regime.

SITTING SUSPENDED On ithat occasion, fists were used freely, kicks were given and received, a Yew Deputies were bitten. For 25 minutes there was pandemonium. Pinally, the tudiers managed to separate the fighters and the Prestdent suspended the sitting.

The last blow was credited to Communist woman deputy, Carln Capponi, who gave Signor Togni a glancing blow on the car as he left the Chamber after the sitting was suspended. Fourteen deputies and three shers were injured. All Italian newspapers next day deployed the "degradation of Parliament resulting from such frenzied, irresponsible incidents." "Nine days later, two Communists were suspended for seven sessions and another Communist and a Neo-Fascist were formally censured for parts in the battle—the first such punishment inflicted Deputies since the war. After this battle,

JAPANESE RAYON EXPORTS

Postwar High In Value Japan-Formosa And Volume Expected

Tokyo, Jan. 13.

Japan's exports of rayon and spun rayon goods last year were expected to reach a postwar high, both in value and in volume, according to the Synthetic Textile Association.

Exports of spun rayon fabrics during the first half of the year totalled 117,729,000 square yards, an increase of 95 per cent over the corresponding period of 1953. Exports of rayon fabrics also increased by 8.4 per cent to 121,556,000 square yards, while those of rayon filament declined by three per cent to 9,012,000 lbs.

Exports of staple fibre and spun rayon yarn totalled 362,000 lbs and 10,546,000 lbs respectively, representing increases of 74 per cent and 20.3 per
